

SUCCESSION, TRANSITION AND COMMUNICATION

Women in Grazing Initiative

Presented by South East Local Land Services

Succession and transition of an agribusiness has been identified by many research groups, banks and government bodies as being one of the major risks to Australian agriculture. This event aims to look at how agribusinesses can consider the situation and help all family members on this journey.

Women in Grazing Initiative

POINTS WE WILL DISCUSS

The event is based around agribusiness planning. We will be discussing:

- succession planning, transition of members in and out of agribusiness
- how to establish positive and effective communication throughout the process
- how we can value past and future agribusiness generations
- what are some inter-generational and family communication tools
- moving in and moving on
- what to do before you retire.

These are not easy topics to discuss and we will be approaching these subjects with care and compassion. The event will be run with the speakers presenting in the morning and then a guided discussion session in the afternoon. We will also be giving participants the opportunity to write down their questions to enable anonymous questions to be answered.

LYN SYKES

Lyn Sykes is well known across Australia for the depth of her experience in farm family facilitation and as a co-author of the excellent GRDC publication A Guide to Succession - Sustaining Families and Farms. Lyn has been helping farming families deal with communication and succession for more than 20 years.

DARREN SECOMB

Darren grew up on a small mixed farm on the Adelaide Plains of South Australia and initially studied Agricultural Science at Adelaide University. Darren commenced his own business, Nanga Mai Services providing facilitation services to farming families utilising the skills and knowledge gained from 30 years in rural banking. Darren works with farming families across many industries, geographic locations, financial and emotional health with roles in rural lending, credit, problem loan management, staff training and succession planning.
